The Research Unit construct will focus the scientific activity in 6 different thematic lines, aiming to address the important challenges that Civil Engineering is facing nowadays, as well. The R&D Unit construct intends to implement its research activities in accordance to the development strategy of the Northern Region where it is located and in accordance with the goals of international networks in which a strong participation is presently active. Thus, CONSTRUCT will contribute. This IMPORTANCE OF RESEARCH PROJECTS IN CIVILENGINEERING USING ADVANCED TOOLS topic is very useful for and M.E (Structural) Students project in related to concrete.

SUMMARY:

- A one day seminar on Importance of research projects in civil engineering using advanced tools was conducted in Department of Civil Engineering.
- The seminar starts on 17th FEB 2023 at 2:30 pm. The seminar was handled by Dr.P.Siva bala on that Session the students learn about focused on Concrete Types, The students, who have keen interest in the study of civil engineering, should have sharp analytical and reasoning mind.
- A civil engineer is responsible for planning and designing of concrete structures and then executing the project at an estimated scale.
- This may be experimental investigations, slope stabilities, sustainable technologies or load analysis more.
- An engineering student shouldn't be only contented on what he sees and what his teacher teaches him, he should be exploring deeper things for better ideas. He should communicate with his instructor and his co-students for them to help each of them for a success of one's research.
